

Training Apples

Apples are the recognitions adults can receive after they have participated in training in our Council. The color of each apple represents a different type of training.

Yellow Apples are for self-directed home study, webinars, or online training courses. Examples would be the “Volunteer Basics Series” and “Child Protection” online courses.

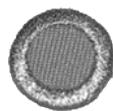

Red Apples are for courses delivered by trained facilitators and contain a standard curriculum and outline. All level based trainings/enrichments will receive this color apple.

Green Apples can be delivered to a group by anyone comfortable with the topic whether a Council Facilitator or not. They usually last 45 minutes to 1 hour. Information contained is useful for troop program and personal growth. Examples include any of the Green Apple workshops or Leader Cafés (such as New Leader Cafés).

Pink Apples are for trainings offered by departments other than the Volunteer Experience Department, such as those offered by Product Sales. Examples would be Troop Cookie Manager and Troop Fall Product Manager training.

Silver Apples are for Administrative trainings delivered by trained facilitators and contain standard curriculum and outlines. These trainings are available for most Community Service Team positions.

I've Been Trained tree patch can be purchased to use as a background for applying the apple patches received at training by participants. Add the apples to the tree itself or make a circle around this patch to show all of the knowledge you have obtained to give your troop a well-rounded experience.

This patch can be placed on a tote bag, jacket, shirt, etc. No proof of training is required to purchase this patch or apples at the Girl Scout Shop.
